Clay Pavers

Clay Pavers are made from natural clay that is found in the ground and has been cast into a form, dried, then kiln fired.

They are traditionally the size of a standard or modular brick but without core holes. Additionally, many selections may be manufactured thicker for heavy vehicular use.

Concrete Pavers

Concrete pavers offer the most color, size and pattern options available and are typically the most economical price point option in hardscape.

Concrete pavers are a great opportunity to create accents too!

Sizes range from as small as cobbles to the popular XL size approximately 18" x 24" (varies by manufacturer).

Ceramic / Porcelain Pavers

Ceramic / Porcelain pavers are a manufactured stone created from various loose aggregates, pressed, and fired. As a man-made product, they offer a better consistency in color variations than nature and are offered in multiple sizes. Typically they are sold in a standard 3/4" or 20mm thickness. A porcelain paver is lightweight and features a high PSI rating.

Typically these pavers are showcased on rooftops of hi-rise buildings and leveled onto mounting pedestals. However, we have seen them more and more on walkways and patios. It's common to see a porcelain paver feature a glazed pattern of veining and textures stenciled and applied to duplicate natural stone and elements of nature. Does this fit your style?

Natural Stone Pavers + Products

Natural stone pavers are a great natural material as the name implies. Natural stone features variations of textures and colors piece to piece.

Typically snapped into rectangular sizes. Depths can vary due to being a natural stone material. Faces can be natural cleft or thermal smooth.

We also distribute natural stones that fit into a tighter size tolerance, but the price is typically more expensive due to additional manufacturing steps.
